Most car buying guides concentrate on WHAT to buy whether it be new or used. This book covers that, but assumes the buyer knows roughly what he wants. What has been missing until now is a guide through the jungle of places and prices which tells you WHERE to buy and HOW to pay not a penny more than necessary.

The Happiness Illusion Jul 28 2019 The West has never been more affluent yet the use of antidepressants is on the increase to the extent that the World Health Organisation has declared a major source of concern. How has this state of affairs come about and what can be done? Television and advertising media seem to know. Wherever we look they offer countless remedies for our current situation - unfortunately none of them seem to work. The Happiness Illusion explores how the metaphorical insights of fairy-tales have been literalised and turned into commodities. In so doing, their ability to educate and entertain has largely been lost. Instead advertising and television sell us products that offer to magically transform the way we look, we age, where we live -both in the city and the countryside, the possibility of new jobs, and so forth. All of these are supposed to make us happy. But despite the allure of 'retail therapy' modern magic has lost its spell. What then are the sources of happiness in our contemporary society? Through a series of fairy-tales The Happiness Illusion: How the media sold us a fairy tale looks at topics such as age, gender, marriage and rom-coms, Nordic Noir and the representation of therapy on television. In doing so it explores alternative ways to relate to the world in a symbolic and less literal manner - it suggests that happiness comes by making sure we don't fall under the spell of the illusionary promises of contemporary television and advertising. Instead happiness comes from being ourselves - warts and all. This book will be of interest to Jungian academics, film, media and cultural studies academics, social psychologists and their students as well as reaching out to those interested in fairy-tale studies, psychotherapists and educated consumers. Luke Hockley PhD, is Research Professor of Media Analysis, at the University of Bedfordshire, UK. He is a practicing psychotherapist and is registered with the United Kingdom Council for Psychotherapy (UKCP). Luke is joint Editor in Chief of the International Journal of Jungian Studies (IJJS) and a member of the Advisory Board for the journal Spring and lectures widely.
